POLISH DESIGNER WINS AWARDS IN PRESTIGIOUS WORLD OF WEARABLEART (WOW®) COMPETITION

A Polish designer has won awards at the prestigious World of WearableArt™ (WOW®) Awards in Wellington, New Zealand. The 2018 show features 140 finalist garments by 147 designers from 17 countries and regions, vying for 39 awards.

Nika Danielska of Wroclaw won the Under the Microscope Section and was Runner Up to the Supreme WOW Award for her garment Ernst Haeckel's Bride.

WOW Founder and Head Judge Dame Suzie Moncrieff says the garment is one that “the judges thought was a sculptural, three-dimensional art piece with a striking carved archaeological quality. The runner-up for the 2018 Supreme WOW Award is a garment that the judges thought was a beautifully constructed three-dimensional work of wearable art.”

New Zealand's largest theatrical performance, WOW is celebrating its 30th anniversary season in 2018. WOW combines the world's leading wearable art design competition with a spectacular stage show that attracts an annual audience of around 60,000 people - over 40,000 of those travelling to the capital city from across New Zealand and around the globe.

Launched by Dame Suzie Moncrieff in 1987, WOW takes art off the wall and onto the human form. Over the past three decades, WOW has attracted some of the most cutting edge creative designers from across the globe. This year entries from 44 countries and regions vied for a coveted spot onstage. A record 17 countries and regions were represented in the show, showcasing designs by professionals from the fashion, art, design, costume and theatre industries, alongside students and first-time enthusiasts. WOW provides an opportunity for these creatives to experiment, push boundaries and explore design, materials and techniques.

This year's show is presented as a series of six worlds, each with its own design provocation that designers have responded to. Along with the recurring Avant-garde, Aotearoa and Open sections are Under the Microscope, Reflective Surfaces and the biennial Bizarre Bra.

WOW's 2018 judging panel consisted of WOW Founder Dame Suzie Moncrieff; Margarita Robertson, Creative Director of iconic fashion label NOM*d; Sam Gao, Weta Workshop Art Director and Business Development Manager; Weta Workshop Co-founder and CEO Sir Richard Taylor; Cirque du Soleil's Nathalie Bouchard and International Guest judge Mary Wing To.

Garments go through a three-stage judging process to end up onstage, beginning in July. The garments are assessed for detail as well as their performance on stage.

This year's Supreme WOW Award winner was WAR sTOry by Natasha English and Tatyanna Meharry of Christchurch, New Zealand. The sisters are the first ever two-time Supreme WOW Award Winners, having taken the top award in 2013 for The Exchange. This year's Supreme garment commemorates the more than 128,000 New Zealand men and women who served in World War I, of which more than 18,000 never returned home. It was created using recycled objects such as old army and household blankets, salvaged rimu from demolished houses, old collected plastic toy soldiers, broken crushed red bricks and traded pieces of pounamu to create the garment.

World of WearableArt is on at TSB Arena, Wellington from September 27 until October 14. Tickets and more information at worldofwearableart.com.

Poland winner story

Nika Danielska (Wroclaw, Poland) created her garment Ernst Haeckel's Bride after visiting Dublin in 2017 where she went to see the Book of Kells, a Medieval manuscript from the 9th Century, however, she found the museum was closed. To cheer herself up she headed to a nearby bookshop where she discovered the book Art Forms in Nature by Ernst Haeckel, immediately falling in love with his illustrations. She was inspired particularly by radiolarians, microscopic intricate mineral skeletons and created the garment using wire, paper, paint and glue. "I know Haeckel's works have been inspiration to many artists and this is my personal tribute to this great biologist and artist," she says. This is Danielska's first time entering World of WearableArt, and she has two finalist entries in this year's competition.
